

EXHIBITOR OF THE DAY

Colin Kegley, of Franksville, Wisconsin, is the Valley Vet Exhibitor of the Day for November 5. While Kegley is at Color Breed Congress for the first time, his horse is at Congress for the fourth.

Armani, a palomino gelding registered as IM CLASSY N GOLD, once belonged to Kegley's mom; the two traveled to shows all over the United States.

After a stint in California, son Kegley returned home to Wisconsin. "Mom asked me if I wanted to show and when I said yes, she gave Armani to me," he said. "Showing horses would not be possible without my parents being by my side," he said.

In addition to Congress, son Kegley and Armani also have attended shows in Mississippi, Wisconsin and Iowa in 2019.

"We've been here at Congress since Saturday and I love it. It's welcoming, fun and a hoot," he said.

Trail classes have been his favorite experience at Congress, though Kegley admits he gets the jitters competing in trail competition.

After Congress 2019, both son Kegley and Armani are on to new adventures. "Armani has a great attitude that I love, however, after 10 years of showing, he needs a break so he will be retiring," he said.

Each day at Color Breed Congress an exhibitor will be selected to be featured on the official PtHA website at www.pinto.org and Facebook page. Each winner receives a $100 Valley Vet gift card.
