

EXHIBITOR OF THE DAY

The Valley Vet Exhibitor of the Day for Saturday, November 9, is Dona Scharping, of Albion, New York.

Scharping, who has ridden horses for 65 years, grew up on a farm in New York. She began her showing career with a pony. After the pony, she graduated to a horse and then to a breed horse. Scharping bred her horse out of the stud, HIGH LONESOME.

Scharping now shows a 9-year-old horse named SERENITY LONSOME CRUS.

“He does it all,” Scharping said.

“SERENITY LONSOME CRUS does ranch, English and Western classes. We haven’t jumped into dressage yet, but we’re thinking about it.”

“He can be a clown sometimes ... but he’s been with me his whole life,” Scharping said about her horse’s personality.

This is Scharping’s fifth time to attend Color Breed Congress. She returns year after year because she enjoys the people and atmosphere. She also likes traveling to new places.

Congratulations to Dona Scharping. During Color Breed Congress an exhibitor was selected daily and featured on the official PtHA website at www.pinto.org and its Facebook pages. Each winner received a $100 Valley Vet gift card.
